

The Future Is Fiduciary: A Conversation with Eric Clarke and Derek Bruton

As the title probably tells you, if you're going to guest star on Derek Bruton's podcast, Can You Hold My Attention, you'd better have something interesting to say.

Eric Clarke, Orion's CEO and the "fastest rising star in fintech and wealth management," does.

From a look back at 2020's impact on the financial services industry to a deep dive into the fiduciary future of wealth management, Bruton and Clarke cover it all: the increasing importance of building connections within a suite of solutions, technology as the great equalizer, and the behavioral finance revolution.

In an interview that's anything but ordinary, you'll see why Bruton calls Eric Clarke "a quiet leader with the tenacity of a pit bull going after a pork chop." And what does the Cheesecake Factory have to do with the future of fintech? Tune in to find out!

Listen Now!

Want to be part of the future of wealth management? Click here to learn more about Orion's powerful, connected, technology-driven experience.